Continuation of 5. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because: The Applicant is of the opinion that the system of Bresnan et al."...only prints postage (franks) on the envelope into which the document is inserted". However, Bresnan et al. recite documents printed according to characteristics selected (abstract; column 2, lines 21-43) and the printing of reply envelopes (column 2, lines 27-29) as part of the mail definition process. To one of ordinary skill, a "business reply" can be an envelope or a card, and postage marks such as "no postage necessary" are in a specified location. Hence, the printer has to know a priori where the postage is to be printed (inherency).
